MICROCOMPUTERS IN ONTARIO PUBLIC LIBRARIES

FOREWORD

The purpose of this directory is to allow libraries to share information on how they are using microcomputers. It was produced in response to an expressed need from the library community, and is the result of a comprehensive survey sent to all public libraries in March, 1986. Responses were received from eighty-four libraries, indicating significant and various activity in this area of information technology.

The directory is part of a comprehensive program to assist small libraries with the implementation of new technology. The "Automation Program for Small Libraries" (APSL) funds training sessions across the province, provides publications related to the use of microcomputers in libraries, and assists with funding of feasibility studies and purchase of computer hardware and software. While the directory is part of the APSL program, it will prove of benefit to all sizes of libraries. Microcomputers are fast becoming standard equipment in any organization.

It is hoped that information contained in this directory will be of assistance to public library boards and staff contemplating purchase of a microcomputer, and to those who are exploring new ways to use their existing equipment effectively.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE

The Directory consists of six sections.

Section A: This lists the microcomputers, software and application in use by Ontario Public Libraries. The libraries are listed alphabetically by the name of the board.

Each separate hardware configuration is listed as a separate paragraph.

Software is listed by the general description of the application where the software has been used. The software package is described by name, version, and the hardware environment on which it operates in the specific library. Where no software is provided, the library has only recently purchased equipment but has not made a software decision.

Section B: Hardware Index

This section lists all libraries using a specific hardware environment. A full listing of the hardware configuration is included under the name of the library board in Section A.

Section C: Printer Index

This section lists all libraries using a given brand of printer. A full listing of the hardware and software utilized is included under the name of the library board in Section A.

Section D: Software Index

This section lists all software titles in use in libraries. It has been subdivided by the hardware on which the software is running, and the name of the library board. The full description of the hardware and software environment is included under the name of the library board in Section A.

Section E: Classified Library Application Index

This section lists all software, hardware and libraries running applications in several broad categories. A full description of the hardware environment is included under the name of the library board in Section A.

Section F: Alphabetical Library Application Index

This section lists all library applications, alphabetically, including in each entry the software, hardware and library name. A full description of the hardware and software environment is included under the name of the library board in Section A.
